

Nyack College MBA

2005-2006 Refund Policy

Since Nyack College MBA is on a modular schedule, our refund policy for students wishing to withdraw differs slightly from most traditional programs.

The most important factor in determining how much liability you incur in a particular trimester is the date you actually withdraw from the program. The official date of your withdrawal is the day you contact the MBA Registrar's Office at (845) 358-1710 extension 120, to inform us of your intentions. It is not the date you stop attending, so be sure to notify the Registrar immediately.

Your financial liability at Nyack College MBA is outlined in the following statements:

- ❖ Liability for each module, or course, is incurred after the first class in that module; e.g. after the first class of Managerial Thought Ethic (BSG 610), you are fully liable for the cost of that module.
- ❖ In Trimester One, liability for the full semester tuition is incurred after the first night of Global Business Operations. The third module of the trimester.
- ❖ In Trimester Two, liability for the full semester tuition is incurred after the first night of Strategic Market Management. The third module of the trimester.
- ❖ In Trimester Three, liability for the full trimester tuition is incurred after the first night of Entrepreneurial/Intrapreneurial. The third module of the trimester.
- ❖ Prior to the point of incurring full liability, you will be charged for only the course modules you have started; e.g. if, in Trimester One, you withdraw from the program before E-Commerce begins, you will be liable for the cost of Managerial Thought Ethic only.
- ❖ Due to federal and state regulations, all or part of loans and/or grants may have to be returned. In such cases, you are still liable for any tuition and fees incurred.
